ABOUT JOURNAL

A Social Work Bulletin is a peer-reviewed academic publication that serves as a vital platform for sharing research, theoretical insights, and evidence-based practices within the field of social work. The journal aims to advance professional knowledge, inform social policy, and promote ethical and effective interventions across diverse populations and settings. Articles published typically include original research, case studies, literature reviews, and critical essays on topics such as mental health, child welfare, community development, social justice, human rights etc. By fostering dialogue among scholars, practitioners, and policymakers, Social Work Bulletin contribute significantly to the development and evolution of the discipline of social work in particular and social sciences in general, ensuring that practice remains informed, inclusive, and responsive to emerging social challenges.

Research articles in Social work Bulletin are accepted on the basis of concepts, methodology and relatedness to the field of social work, social sciences and its allied fields.
